

The New Teacher Project

About the Organization

The New Teacher Project (TNTP) is a national nonprofit dedicated to closing the achievement gap by ensuring that high-need students get outstanding teachers. Founded by teachers in 1997, TNTP partners with school districts and states to implement scalable responses to their most acute teacher quality challenges. Since its inception, TNTP has trained or hired approximately 43,000 teachers, benefiting an estimated 7 million students nationwide. It has established more than 75 programs and initiatives in 31 states and published four seminal studies on urban teacher hiring and school staffing.

About the Presenters

Timothy Daly

President, The New Teacher Project (TNTP)

Since his appointment as President in 2007, Tim has led The New Teacher Project's efforts to end educational inequality through a focus on effective teaching. Under his leadership, TNTP has emerged as a leading source of insight and expertise on building better teacher evaluation systems. Previously, Tim served as Vice President for Policy, helping to launch a team that has released a series of acclaimed studies of the policies and practices that affect the quality of the nation's teacher workforce, including The Widget Effect (2009) and Teacher Evaluation 2.0 (2010). He began his career in education as a teacher at Northeast Middle School in Baltimore.
